SUFFERING CHILDREN.

& Pathetic Incident in the Life of Little Charlie Gray-A Case of Extreme Poverty.

Little Charlie Gray is a familiar figure on the streets of this city. He is a newsboy, between six and seven years of ago, diminutive in figure, and with strikingly beautiful features. A refined face and clear complexion are set off by dark-brown eyes and hair almost black, and one turns to look again at the interesting little fellow seekcustomer among the throngs sidewalk. His face, too, and guilelessnes, strinkingly and he is strinkingly free from any species of "tonghness" which many boys of his class affect. He is often seen on the streets long after the shrill cries of his companions are hushed, and nearly every night he "gets stuck," in the parlance of the fraternity, which means he has left on his hands papers for which there is no demand. He has repeatedly been asked, when seen with his papers under his arm at 10 or 11 o'clock at night why he did not go home, being told that it was too late to dispose of his stock. He invariably replies that he cannot leave the streets until he has secured fifty cents to carry to his mother. Many fifty cents to carry to his mother. Many have been inclined to consider the child shrewd beyond his years, and to think that he preys upon the sympathies of the public he preys upon the sympathies of the public for the profit derived from the practice. Several have, therefore, refused to buythis papers late in the evening, and have spoken harshly to the little fellow.

A circumstance occurred late Friday night, however, which awoke much sympathy for him. The night was cold, one of the severest of the winter, and patrolman Weirick found the boy, about 11 o'clock, crying bitterly at the corner of Washington and Alabama streets. As usual, he had a lot of afternoon papers tucked under his arm, and was offering them to passers-by. He was without an overcoat or wrap of any kind, and his knee-pants exposed his little limbs to the cutting wind. When the officer told him to go home he answered that he did not have enough money to carry to his mother. He was told that he would make no more that night, and replied that he could not go home until he had the required 50 cents. Officer Weirick, doubting his statement, attempted to persuade him to statement, attempted to persuade him to quit the almost deserted streets, but the child stoutly refused to do so. The officer finally took him by the hand and forced him to accompany him to his home. He was taken to No. 5312 North Alabama street, where he lives with his mother, and street, where he lives with his mother, and his actions upon reaching home convinced the officer that the little fellow was badly frightened. His mother had gone to the Park Theater, and only the child's sister was in the house. As soon as he entered the room he produced his purse with a frightened manner, and taking out all the pennies and nickels emptied them into his sister's hand. The officer left, much impressed with the scene, and is inclined to believe that the lot of the little boy is not altogether happy.

believe that the iot of the little boy is not altogether happy.

Another incident of suffering children was told yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs Hoffman and Grinsteiner. They went yesterday to execute a writ, issued to the Board of Children's Guardians, for the seizure of Lucy and Eddie Leatherman, six and four years of age, respectively. The children, with their parents, were found in a miserable, roofless hut in the rear of a photograph car, near the corner of Washington and West streets. The little girl was sleeping on a mattress, half of which was turned over her, in lieu of better covering. The boy lay between his parents, who were almost nude, on a mattress, which was doubled over them in the same manner. There was no bedding and almost no clothing in the hovel, and the people were suffering severely from cold and hunger. Notwithstanding their extreme poverty the parents resisted the extreme poverty the parents resisted the officers when they made known their mission, and the latter found it necessary to force the father into a corner while the Judge Woods stated briefly the object of the meeting and asked for suggestions. William Scott, speaking for the Board of Trade, said the matter had been called to the attention of that that body about a year ago, and that the board had at once decided to do all in its power to promote the success of the meeting. Its officers and members now stood roady to carry out that promise. George T. Porter, in behalf of the Commercial Club, said that body felt the deepest interest in the matter, and would be glad to co-operate in any possible manner. Charles E. Coffin expressed for President Lilly, of the club, that gentleman's regret at his inability to be present, and his readiness to lend his personal aid and that of at his inability to be present, and his read-iness to lend his personal aid and that of the club to the furthering of the movement

After a full discussion of the best mode of action and preparation the following temporary committee, to take initiatory steps and appoint permanent committees, was appointed: Judge W. A. Woods, Noble C. Butler, Mayor Sullivan, President Tanner, of the Board of Trade; President Lilly, of the Commercial Club; Dr. N. A. Hyde, president of the Indianapolis Literary Club; Jacob P. Dunn, president of the Century Club, and Dr. R.S. Stone, president of the Marion County Medical Society. Great interest is being manifested throughout the State in the August meeting, and the various scientific and educational institutions are especially interested in promoting its success.

He was undersome passenger coaches, which he was inspecting, at the time of the accident, when an engine backed against the cars, and, before he could escape, he was run over. He was removed to the infirmary and Dr. Marsee was summoned. His left leg was found to have been so badly crushed as to necessitate its amputation, and his left arm and hand were also badly mangled the surgeon deeming it advisable to take off two of the crushed fingers. Sullivan leaves a large family at No. 488 Clifford avenue.

Testimonial to Mr. Gillet.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade, yesterday, the friends of Arthur Gillet. the retiring secretary, presented him a gold watch and chain, as a token of their appreciation of his services as secretary, The presentation was made in a happily-worded seech by President Tanner, to which Mr.

Gillet gave brief but feeling response. Jacob W. Smith then passed round the apples and eigars, and the new administration was considered as fairly begun. The watch was one of the first quality, of celebrated Swiss make, and the case was engraved especially for the purpose. The gift was an offering of the governors of the Board of Trade several grain merthe Board of Trade, several grain merchants, and others.

PROGRESS OF THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

It Fixes a Date for the Exposition of Street-Paving Material-Increase in Membership.

The Commercial Club committee appointed to arrange for the proposed street-paving exposition met at the club beadquarters yesterday afternoon, and took important action regarding the matter. It was definitely decided to hold the exposition in exhibit the material is to be left in this city as the basis of a permanent exposition. The material is to be displayed in samples of one square yard, and each company making an exhibit will be expected to send Increased Pension Business.

A noticeable feature of the business at the pension office at this point is the largely increased number of deaths of pensioners reported daily. During the month of February seventy-five were reported. Agent Ensley dropped six names from the rolls yesterday morning, all because of the deaths of the pensioners, and as he had not then received all his correspondence for the day he thought more would be reported in the afternoon mails. The unusually large number of such deaths is thought to be particularly attributable to la grippe. While the deaths mentioned slightly decrease the volume of business in the office, it is more than balanced by the growing number of new certificates constantly received. These are now averaging about ceived. These are now averaging about one hundred a day, and on Friday 105 new certificates reached the office.

Club-House for Commercial Travelers. A number of Indianapolis traveling men held a meeting at the Grand Hotel, last night, preliminary to effecting an organization and establishing a club-house here. This move has been talked of for some time, but last night's meeting was the first definite action which has yet been taken to get it under way. It is the intention to rent a house and fit it up bandsomely for the use of the new organization, which is to include in its membership all the traveling men of good standing who reside in this city. It is not to interfere in any way with the present organizations of commercial travelers, many of the members of which are actively interested in working up the present social enterprise.

Samuel Patterson, about fifty years of age, employed at the works of the Indianapolis Cabinet Company, had his right hand seriously injured by a buzz-saw, while at work, about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Dr. Perry dressed the wounds and had much difficulty in stopping the flow of blood, as he was engaged with the patient, at intervals, all day. Patterson was removed to his home, No. 438 Peru street. He met with a similar accident a few years ago, suffering at the time the loss of the thumb of the hand injured yes-

PURCHASERS OF THE GAS PLANTS.

A Baron Who Becomes Interested in Indianapolis Property-The Large Deal Closed.

A Journal reporter was so fortunate as to meet at the New Denison Hotel, yesterday, a New York gentleman, who has a personal acquaintance with all the members of the syndicate that has bought the gas plants of this city-artificial and natural. "I know," said he, "all four of them, E. C. Benedict, Baron E. J. Jerzamanowski-be careful of the spelling-Mr. C. F. Deitrich and H. J. Davidson. They are the owners of the majority of the stock of the Equitable Gas Company of New York city, one of the largest and wealthiest corporations of that kind in New York. They are also owners of the stock of the gasworks at Baltimore-the Chesapeakewhich is considered as, perhaps, the finest and best equipped gas plant this country. These gas-experts, the Baron being especially prominent in and he has patents on thirty or forty different gas appliances. Mr. Benedict, who is the oldest of the quadrilateral, is about sixty years of age, the others being about fifty. He is the principal partner in the house of Benedict & Co., bankers, of New for 50 cents.

"How do you suppose they came to invest here?" "Well, they are men who have money, and are always looking about for invest-ments. I think, after looking the ground over, they put in their money, not on speculation, but for a good thing. There is growth and progress in this city, and those gentlemen evidently look at it in that light. They are men of great wealth, and once interested in this city, they will probably invest in other enterprises." "Of what nationality is the Baron? Is he very kind to his poor countrymen, and his office in New York is a great place for them to come with their grievances, which are of various kinds, but usually financial. He wears a little gold badge of which he is very proud. I happen to know that it is a decoration conferred upon him by the Pope as a recognition for some special deeds of charity to Polish immigrants of the Catholic Church upon their arrival in New York. He is large, heavy-set, fine-looking—you might say, a handsome man—and though, as I said, fifty years old, is not much gray. I really think Indianapolis is to be congratulated on having these gentlemen interested in her prosperity."

"He is a Russian-Pole and an exile. Outside of his great wealth rather than because of it, he is a very interesting character. In the first place, he is an exile. He cannot return to his own country, but once a year he makes a pilgrimage to Vienna, where he meets his aged mother. He is very kind to his poor countrymen, and his office in New York is a great place for them 25c each.

While it can be stated upon the best authority that the deal was closed Friday noon, the gentlemen here interested in the properties are still unwilling to give any details. They say that the main points of what they know have been given to the public, but as to the various steps leading to the consunmation of the purchase reporters must wait for the return of Mr. Allen M. Fletcher. It is admitted, though, that the purchase price is $2,000,000, but as to the proportionate sums thereof that are to go to the several companies no statement will be made. Notwithstanding their reticence, all the stockholders concerned, so far as known, are satisfied with what has been done cerned, so far as known, are satisfied with what has been done. A good deal of speculation is offered as to the basis of the sales, it being presumed upon the statement of one stockholder of the natural-gas company, who received 90 cents on the dollar for his holding, that that figure ruled as to that stock. It is understood that all obligations of the three companies, including a $100,000 mortgage of the natural-gas company to the Standard Oil Company, and the bonds and mortgages of the artificial-gas companies, will be as sumed by the purchasers.

Street-Car Franchise Given. The Citizens' Street-railroad Company has received a thirty-five years' franchise to use the streets of West Indianapolis. It 18 given by the ordinance which has been pending so long before the board of that town to and over which there has been so much contention. The ordinance provides that the West Indianapolis line shall be run in connection with the lines of this city, and that the passengers shall be entitled to transfer. Either animal or electrical power can be used, and the tracks will run out Kentucky avenue and over the bridge to the school-house on the hill. It is expected the line will be in operation by June 1.

Looking for His Throne. John Mockentha, thirty-five years old was arrested at Ad Hereth's harness-manufacturing establishment.
